Amber Haydey

Born and raised in Alberta, and currently residing in her hometown, Stony Plain, Amber Haydey is a proud Métis singer/ songwriter. Amber is an experienced performer with regional and national performances ranging from small intimate clubs to large performance stages. A small town girl at heart, she draws inspiration from the prairies she was raised on, and the memories that have truly defined the woman she has become. Amber says so eloquently "I want to connect with my audience through my own personal experiences, and the experiences of those around me. When I am on stage, my goal is always the same; put on a great show and give the audience something to remember me by. Substance and authenticity are the most important factors when it comes to writing and playing a live show. That's what my fans have come to expect, and I intend to give it to them." With powerhouse vocals, a style that is uniquely her own, and a whole lot of heart, Amber is well on her way to achieving the dreams she works so hard for.
